

An Odysia Story

*“Education is the kindling of a flame, not the filling of a vessel”-
Socrates*

Can you imagine a world in which everyone has perpetual access to a first-class U.S. education in a supportive online environment? Odysia Learning Inc. (OL) has such a vision and mission, it is a progressive online education Company that offers customized consulting, education and courses in an individualized approach, with exceptional teachers and an emphasis on quality via its LMS.

Courses from a wide range including Early Childhood Teacher Training, Autism, SAT prep, High School Tutoring, and College and Career Counseling, ESL among others are taught by a team of distinguished knowledge experts from prestigious U.S. and other international universities. Courses are accessible 24/7.

Exploration is encouraged in a global online community that helps students find meaning, direction, and ultimately the professional skills needed in order to achieve success. OL’s vision is to level the playing field for all, the privileged and under-privileged. Have access to world class education to all via the new digital medium.

OL’s mission is to help students strategically achieve transformative growth in a dynamic digital community. Since the advent of high speed internet–Wi Fi and broadband–the global paradigm for communication has shifted substantially. It is now possible to move voice, data, and videos in real-time, allowing information to be shared at speeds never before imagined. This technology has made it possible for OL’s team to reach out via its online education platform to global markets, leveling the playing field of high quality education for all.

Our young and diverse team come from a wide range of backgrounds: education, technology, business development, entertainment, management and marketing, visual arts, digital media, early childhood development and special needs – resulting in a myriad of perspectives that allows for a comprehensive education. Above all, our team hopes to improve the quality of education in emerging market countries where students need a cost effective and easily accessible platform to learn and advance their personal and professional development.

Our model is vastly different from other companies. We offer solution based education to current global issues such as autism and social media marketing-high demand disciplines. One out of 68 US children are autistic with a growing number worldwide; there is a shortage of specialists who can work with them Social media marketing skills are crucial in today's world of constant communication. By addressing what is most needed in contemporary global society: creativity, cognitive flexibility, problem solving, high-level communication skills, inventiveness -and more, our students will be confident and prepared to thrive.

In today's world of copious texting, emailing, phone calls, face-time, Skype video, googling, posting on social media sites, sharing pictures and videos-everything is faster and everyone is much more connected than ever. Learning how to succeed in an over-connected world in which everyone is isolated on computers, listening to music on headphones, or glued to smart phones, can be tricky. And in reality the over-connecting may in fact be a way to disconnect. We like technology and we want to use it in a way that unites people from all backgrounds all over the world. We are offering solution based approach, multi-cultural, and complex experience for those eager to learn, grow, and connect in a nurturing haven.

Learning how to communicate concisely, and being able to learn anywhere on a computer is now paramount to the modern education paradigm. Online classes via our Learning Management System offers Power Point lectures and open forum discussion, which are effective ways to learn on the Go and they provide the extraordinary benefits of a cosmopolitan experience. Students from New Zealand, England, South Asia, Africa, North America anywhere can connect in a digital learning setting that is diverse and engaging. What matters most, is that our students want to learn and have access to the internet. Good quality education shouldn't be difficult to attain. Our goal is to make it easy for everyone to have access to high quality education.
